Chapter Six: Prepositions

Again they fell, fell, and fell, Poodle and What?.
What could they tell?
They fell for days
through grays and haze, fell like rays of sun to a spot. What?

On the second day,
What? barked long like a gong—
gong gong gong gong—
“What-what-what-what-what?”
all day long—one long song.
The guy never stopped.
