

conjunction

A word that joins
two words or
two groups
of words:

The dog and the bird....

...a bird or a dog...

...good but difficult...

...in the soup and on the shore...

Chapter Seven: Conjunctions

Again they jumped from that page to this—
this one here—
leaping the gap
and landing with a clap you could hear.

It was a big gap; they made it, though.

Oh, Poodle used his wings
to steady his stance,
What?'s ears wobbled
in a doggy-ear dance,
and Sidney stuck her landing
without even a glance,
and they were there, or here,
in Chapter Seven.
Whew.