

Act Five: The Dickinson Portal

When they shook their fists, they swung their hair.

conj. pron. v. adj. n. pron. v. adj. n.
subj. AVP D.O. subj. AVP D.O.
no phrases

-----clause----- -----clause-----

As they packed to leave Edinburgh,
they heard that rumbling in the distance,
and they wondered about that thunder.

They set forth, hoping
the next portal would be a good one,
but wherever they went,
they heard that bummy rumble.
Over there.

Their path led through leafy forests,
and they heard the rumble.
They trudged up ice mountains,
and still they heard the rumble.

As they trekked, the rumble got louder,
and they knew they were going toward it.
The ground began to shake.

"Maybe this was a mistake," Poodle thought.

