

The rain came quickly.

is a clause because it has
a subject, the noun rain, and a predicate, the verb came.

The adjective the and the adverb quickly are also part of this clause.
They go with their subject and predicate.