

But here is a secret:
even though there are
eight kinds of words,
there are only TWO
main kinds of words,
and the other six
help support the main two.

That is really easy.

The two main kinds of words
are the NOUN
and the VERB,
and the other six kinds of words
help the noun and verb
do their jobs.

Who would imagine that we say everything with only two main kinds of words?
