

The loquacious paleontologist, a grizzled veteran of the field, was mortified and irate. From the very beginning of the dispute, she had advocated giving you and me an opportunity to excavate.

Grabbing her shovel, she lurched through the cryptologist's door, its rusted hinges squeaking.